- ❖ During his studentship Al-Bukhari had to sail in a boat on a river. He had a thousand Ashrafis (Golden coins) in his possession. He was joined by someone who also boarded the boat and met him reverentially, and gradually developed cordial relations so that Al-Bukhari happened to mention to him about the money he had with him. One morning the man began to raise hue and cry, saying that his bag containing one thousand Ashrafis (Golden Coins) was missing. The passengers began to be searched and Al-Bukhari, appraising the situation, threw the bag into the river. The Imam's belongings were also searched but the money could not be found... When the journey was over the man asked Al-Bukhari about the bag of money. Al-Bukhari replied that he had thrown it away into the river. When the man asked him why he thought it necessary to jettison it into the river and sustain such a big loss, Al-Bukhari said, "All my life I have spent in collecting and compiling the hadith of the Prophet (peace be upon him)
